

The Survey Exception

In order to properly explain the additional coverage and benefits of the survey amendment to the new residential owner, the following examples are offered: The cost is only 5% of the basic premium rate.

The cost of the coverage is substantially reduced.

Payment of loss according to the terms of policy arising out of:

1. Forced removal of fences across boundary lines or into easement.
2. Disputes with adjoining landowners over location of boundary lines.
3. Forced removal of improvements located across boundary lines.
4. Forced removal of driveways encroaching onto adjoining property.
5. Encroachments of improvements into easements or building set back lines.
